On behalf of my employer and myself, I hereby grant COMSOL, Inc., its affiliates and each of their distributors, and each of their contractors and agents and others acting on each of their behalves approval to reproduce, distribute to the public, and publicly display the article, "Graphene Paves the Way for Next-Generation Plasmonics", and material such as pictures and modeling results that accompany it (collectively, the "Article") in one or more of the following circumstances:

- As an insert to one or more IEEE Spectrum publications (the "Insert") in any medium now existing or hereafter existing.
- As an article in COMSOL News in any medium now existing or hereafter existing.
- On web pages that pertain to the application or physics described by the Article.
- As a publication, separated from the IEEE Spectrum Insert and COMSOL News format, in any medium now existing or hereafter existing, in its entirety or in an abridged version, including in the form of a presentation, and/or in other compilations of works, including but not limited to publishing the Article in an insert to other publications or packaging the Article in conjunction with other publications.

This permission is granted with no payments due to me or my employer and is granted for reproduction, distribution, and public display of the Article in whole or in part throughout the world for any purpose. This permission also includes the right to prepare derivative works by translating the Article in whole or in part into another language for reproduction, distribution to the public and public display in that format. For publication in the forums listed above, this permission shall last until COMSOL, Inc. receives a written request from me or an authorized representative of my employer to terminate this permission, except that no such termination shall operate to revoke permission granted with respect to instances in which the Article (or any modification thereof) has already been placed in circulation. This permission includes any use of my name, image, or likeness appearing in this Article.

I have not included in the Article any confidential or proprietary information of my employer or any other information I am not authorized to include in the Article, and I am authorized to give this permission.

Signed:  _____
